

Laurent Moccozet

University of Geneva (CH)

Laurent Moccozet is a senior lecturer and researcher at the Computer Science Centre of the University of Geneva. He is a member of the Knowledge Engineering Laboratory in the Information Science Institute.

He teaches Information Systems at bachelor and master levels and co-directs the bachelor in Information Systems and Science Services.

His research interests are the representation, management, exploitation and visualization of knowledge and their application in the fields of education, culture, heritage and health.

His recent research was focused on social and collaborative learning, personal learning environments, and peer learning and assessment.